CANADIAN NEWS.

President Grevy's Honors to Hector Fabre.

BONUS FOR GRIST MILLS.

Election Petition—Mileage Tickets—Fatal Accident—The Six Nations—Pleasure Seekers.

PHOSPHATES IN QUEBEC.

Mr. O. Baleki, mining engineer for Quebec Province, and Mr. Clarke, Crown Land Agent, have just completed a prospecting tour through a portion of Pontiac county with very successful results. On Calumet Island superior phosphates were found on the properties of John Honan and George Gilker, and deposits of molybdenite on the farms of C. Dumouchel and John Revitte. Phosphates were also found on the property of the Hon. George Bryson at the foot of Coulonge Rapids.

There was a pic-nic held at Kingston on the 7th inst., in connection with the Methodist Church. A man came from Renfrew with drink, and some of the men got excited and commenced to quarrel. Two of them named Box and Clemow, drew revolvers and commenced firing. They had been quarrelling before, and a man standing by, taking no part in the affair, named Crain, was shot in the breast accidentally. It is thought he will not recover.

Mr. A. P. Knight, of the Collegiate Institute, while in Ottawa, recently called a meeting of the medical men of that place, and suggested the establishment of a medical college in connection with the Ottawa college, stating that he would guarantee to collect $8,000 if the doctors would promise to provide another $8,000. The prominent physicians of Ottawa attended the meeting, but nothing definite was done in the matter.

Frank Williams, son of a wealthy Hanover farmer, was the victim of a terrible and fatal accident on the 7th inst. He was driving a steam threshing machine across a rotten bridge, near Baldwins, when the bridge gave way and let the machine through about four feet, squeezing Williams in such a way as to render him helpless. In this position he was sprayed with steam till the flesh in many places dropped from the bones. He died soon after.

At a general council of the Six Nations held on the 7th inst., it was resolved to send a deputation of thirty chiefs, accompanied by one of their splendid bands of music, to Niagara on the 14th inst. to join in the grand celebration of the U. E. Loyalists, among whom the Six Nations figured so prominently a century ago. The celebration at Niagara promises to be a big affair.

Mayor Mason and the alderman of the City of Hamilton, several ladies and Chief of Police Stewart passed through Midland on the 7th. They passed the balance of the week among the beautiful islands of the Georgian bay. Every week pleasure seekers from Canada and American cities arrive at Midland, some spending several weeks among the islands.

President Grevy has conferred upon Hector Fabre, Commissary-General in Canada, the decoration of the Legion of Honor. Figaro referring thereto says it it is a proof of the interest with which France regards Canada, and shows a lively desire to cement the relations which are becoming closer between the two countries.

American cowboys are committing serious depredations throughout the Saskatchewan district, and scarcely a day passes that one or more daring thefts of horses or cattle is not reported. One freighter lost twenty horses between Troy and Humboldt last week.

Following the Grand Trunk's example, the Canadian Pacific Railway Company will, on and after next Monday, issue mileage tickets at 500 miles for $12.50, 1000 miles $22.50, tickets good for a year non-transferable.

At the Quidivide Lake regatta, St. John, N. F., on the 7th, the boat Terra Nova was swamped and three of her crew, Goss, Martin and Power, drowned. Coxswain Ryan, who was taken from the water alive died.

Members of the Quebec Board of Trade characterize the conduct of the Dominion Government in connection with the C. P. R. short line survey as evasive and meaningless.

The summer session of the Medical College began on Monday the 7th at Kingston, and there are now fourteen students in attendance. The number will be increased.

The trial of the petition against the return of Hon. G. W. Ross, Minister of Education for Ontario, resulted in the petition being dismissed with costs.

Mr. Strout, general-manager of the Dominion Express Company was in Kingston on the 7th inst., making arrangements for the opening of an office there.

The Indian Department offers a bonus of $1,500 to secure the erection of grist mills, near Pitt and Carlton reserves, in the Northwest Territory.

The claims of the Cayuga Indians of Canada against the State of New York have been rejected.

A CHINESE LAUNDRYMAN

Has an Experience with an "American Fire-Cracker."

[New York World.]

A funny incident occurred at Passaic. There are several Chinese mangling establishments in the place where the blas-eyed sons of scapends convert miniature button-holes into coal-scuttle proportions and swell their peripheries to such dimensions that the citizens are compelled to toss up a cent before deciding which hole to crawl through when they wish to dress up. One of the local Wun Lungs recently imported a banjo-featured assistant from the Flowery kingdom. In pure Chinese his name sounds like a section of barbed wire fence. His clothes fit him like a sentry box and, as is usual with the delegate from Ratland, he wears his overalls under his shirt and dresses otherwise inside out. He evidently hadn't been in the country more than a day or so when somebody put salt on his pigtail, trigged him and sent him to Passaic. While the boss was around the corner purchasing an onion for dinner, Yum Yum stood in the door of the soapery flirting with a bonnet which somebody across the street had placed on top of a water-pitcher, and which Yum imagined to be a female sitting by the window. As the hat nodded in the breeze Yum bowed and then the corners of his mouth shook hands with his ears and sauntered around to where his hair was cut long.

"D'yez want any ice this morning?" asked the ice man as he drove up.

"Allee same," chuckled Yum, until he resembled a chicken with the pip.

The man placed the ice on the sidewalk and Yum grabbed it. Then he laid it down without anybody telling him to and put both hands up to his shoulders in his mouth and danced.

"Hi yi, muchy wotty hottes," he ejaculated and the ran inside, came out with a shirt, wrapped the ice up in it, and then disappeared inside again.

Two minutes later the room was filled full of smoke and hissing steam and when Wun Lung came around the corner with his noonday feast in his hand there was a crowd in front of the door and several persons had started off to notify the firemen.

Wun Lung dashed through the smoke and found his fresh assistant hanging out of the back window. He was almost suffocated.

"Wasse mattel?" he asked.

"Man leavee Melical fli-clacked. He go off—boong!"

"Whel puttee?" asked Wun.

"Stove," gasped Yum.

"All samee blank foolee," yelled Wun.

"Allee wettee. Puttee in stove, dil. Goee offee—boong!"

There was danger of a conflagration for a few minutes, but it was averted, and as Yum took the next train for the city he said:

"Funny fli-clackel; cookee all uppee—boong! All wettee. Yum dlice. Stove swettee—boong!" And he hid himself in his pockets and left for New York.

The Man with the Voice.

["Mentor" in Chicago Herald.]

"It makes me laugh every time I think of it," remarked a young Indianian who was going home from the recent convention, "it's so ridiculous. What makes me laugh? Why, an interview Reading Clerk Bell had with a reporter in which he told a long story about how he gets his voice ready. He says a week or two before the convention he stopped smoking and eating meat, and confined himself to soft eggs, toast and water. Then he had to sleep just so, and all that sort of thing. Why, he said he wouldn't dare take a drink of beer or whisky. Now, I never observed any such precautions myself; never thought of such a thing. I think it's all foolishness. I eat three square meals a day, the squarer the better, and as for drinking, I take nothing stronger than Lawrenceburg sour mash or Louisville copper distilled. Yet I had no trouble making myself heard by every man, woman and New Jerseyan in the hall. There was a deaf man among the delegates, and I noticed when Bell was reading he would put his horn up to his ear and lean his head forward and look troubled. But when I had anything to say he would drop the horn, sit back in his seat and smile. Why, the people could hear me just as plain as though we'd all been in a country school house."

"But were you one of the clerks?" inquired a Kentucky delegate. "I don't remember seeing you on the platform."

"Clerk! Thunder; no," replied the Hoosier with some warmth. "Do you think I'd lower myself or my voice to do such work as that? No; I'm the man that sat up in the gallery and gave that whoop at the end of every storm of applause. Betchuve heard me, and I don't have any foolish notions 'bout training my voice. If that Bell fellow would drive a pair of steers to a plow in a ten-acre lot as I do down home, he wouldn't want any soft egg diet in order to make himself heard in the biggest convention this side of the bad place."

A Clever Oriental Trick.

[Moncure D. Conway's Letter.]

By the way, no miracle claimed for Mme. Blavatsky, the Theosophist, is more marvelous than one I saw performed by a conjurer in Calcutta. Let me premise that Western reporters of Oriental jugglery are apt to Orientalize their statements remarkably. The mango growing out of a floor or deck is a poor trick; the rope ladder thrown into the air and staying there for people to climb up, is unknown in India, as are some other marvels. Your readers will be fairly justified in suspecting a similar Oriental largeness in the following: A man brought out a dozen or more little figures, under two inches high—little dolls—and, setting them on their straw-like legs on a deal table, bade them dance. The man stood quite a yard off, but whenever he bade the figures move, they moved. He ordered two to come out and waltz in the center of table, and they did so. The tiny things trooped up and down the table as he commanded in the most amazing way. Finally the conjurer invited me to lay a penny on the table. I did so, and the coin instantly galloped across the wooden table and pitched itself in a money-box. And yet this man was neither a thought-reader nor a Theosophist, but an avowed conjurer, performing in a tent on the wayside.

He Silenced Her.

[Arkansaw Traveler.]

"Simon," said old Kate, "yer doan lub me like yer uster."

"Wall, I tell yer, er passon kain speck er man ter lub er 'oman wid er jaybird heel like yesse'f's got. Befo' de war, dat sorter heel done tolerable well, but in dese days da is 'pudiated. Yer oughter married er Guinea nigger in de fust place."

"Yesse'f ought to."

"Dat's de trouble, honey. I did."

Objection That Would Wear Away.

[Boston Globe.]

When Hannibal Hamlin was vice president he went into a cobbler's shop in Bangor to get a pair of shoes he had left to be tapped.

"Are they all right, Mr. Hamlin?" asked the mender, anxious to please.

"Yes, yes; I guess so. The soles are a little thicker than I wanted them, but it is an objection that will wear away in time," replied the veteran politician.

LABOR DEMONSTATION.

The city of Hamilton, in Ontario, recently witnessed what undoubtedly was the largest labor demonstration ever held in Canada. The day was a grand gala one, and the "ambitious little city" appeared in its best garb. The industries of Hamilton are no mean ones. Its mechanics and artizans can be numbered by thousands. Representatives from all parts of Ontario and Quebec, were present, as well as from the United States. The principal speaker of the day was Mr. Henry George, of Staten Island, United States, who recently made such an onslaught against landlordism in England. It will be some time ere Victoria has such a celebration. In fact unless the Chinese are restricted from coming into this Province, our honest, hard-working mechanics and artisans will have to leave the field, vanquished by a horde that are bound to overrun the entire Province. Yet they find sympathizers amongst a class, who possibly never saw a large manufactory, or know the immense benefit a few, such as they have in Hamilton, would be to Victoria and the Province generally, which, but for the heathen Chinee, would likewise be here.

BEING PACIFIED.

The wise legislation of the present Liberal Government is having its deserved effect in Ireland, which is gradually but surely quieting down. Every intended reform is accomplishing its end. Rents have been reduced so as to make the average farmer much more comfortable, and when such a state exists, the farmers there, as in Canada, are not likely to be either the dupes or the tools of professional agitators or political mountebanks. The Education Bill is accomplishing wonders as education is being extended to an extent never before known. Though the rents are lower, yet the land owners are finding that they are going to be better off, because their rents are now more promptly and regularly paid. The relationship between landlords and tenants is thus being improved, while measures for rendering the condition of the laborer more tolerable are also in preparation. Although affairs in Ireland are looking up—so much so that the Government is thinking about reducing the forces stationed there.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Some of the Dominion Cabinet Ministers have admitted that an effort will be made to reject or at least postpone the acceptance of the decision of the Privy Council in so far as it relates to the disputed boundary between Ontario and the Dominion. It is hinted that the Tories are anxious to rouse Quebec against Ontario of this question, believing that they can rely upon the copperhead element and corruption to return a sufficient number of members from Ontario to keep the party in power.

As Lord Lorne is advocating, day in and day out, Canada's claims as a field for British farmers, the Winnipeg Sun is good enough to say that "he was not as showy a Governor-General as his predecessor, Lord Dufferin, but he wears and washes better." The Sun also speaks highly of Lorne's hospitality to Canadian visitors.

MANY HANDSOME RESIDENCES.

Beautiful Gardens and Cosey Homes—Business Houses, and Various Industries.

THE CITY'S LOCATION.

The first town on the Mainland was Derby, near Langley, a station of the Hudson Bay Co., up the Fraser. Sir James Douglas, in 1858, had the town lots sold at auction, and they were promptly taken. When Colonel Moody arrived as Chief Commissioner of Lands and Works, he decided that its proximity to the American line was against it, so he abandoned it, and selected the present site of New Westminster, then called Queenburgh. Purchasers of lots at Derby had the privilege of exchanging from that point to the new townsite, which now, with its beautiful suburban houses and lots, covers about a mile square. Lots ranged at auction from $100 to $1800 each. The settlement of a detachment of Royal Engineers, all of whom were artizans and mechanics, was quite an assistance in settling and opening up the new country. These however, were, at the petition of a portion of the settlers, recalled in 1863, Colonel Moody returning with those who went home, while those who remained were entitled to 150 acres of land each. Joseph W. Trutch succeeded Colonel Moody as Chief Commissioner of Lands and Works. In 1865, at the mutual request of the colonists of the Island of Vancouver and those of the Mainland, they were disconnected, and each had separate governors appointed by the Home Government. Mr. Kennedy was designated for the Island, while Mr. Frederick Seymour was appointed for the Mainland. These gentlemen were enthusiastically received by those over whom they were afterwards to rule. Each section found out, ere long, the

MERITS OF ITS RESPECTIVE RULER,

And the people of the Island found that they had got a man who was not all to their liking. In fact Mr. Kennedy proved to be of an unpleasant disposition, and somewhat of a political martinet. Mr. Seymour, on the other hand, was everything his people could wish for, and soon became a great favorite, as he did everything he could for the interests of his colony. Things went along on the Island without improving until 1869, when the colonists, unable to stand it longer, petitioned to have their governor removed, which was acceded to, and Governor Seymour was appointed to rule over the combined colonists, and the seat of government was removed to Victoria. Under the new condition of things, the prospects for each somewhat improved, but this happier state of things was dampened by the death of their respected Governor, which occured while he was on a tour of inspection on the Northwest Coast. Mr. Musgrave was appointed to fill the vacancy. During his term the federation of the colonies took place. Mr. Trutch was the first Governor appointed by the Dominion, which position he held four years, and was succeeded by Mr. Richards, who was not considered the best Governor the colony ever had, and not at all to be compared to the present incumbent. Now let us go away back to 1863, at the time the Royal engineers were disbanded. Westminster seemed to have lost a great help, as they distributed a considerable amount of money each month. The petitioners afterwards regretted that hasty action, especially as the men got only a dollar per day from the colony, and performed a class of work that could not be supplied for double the sum. From 1859 till 1863, the number of miners who were constantly passing to and from the gold fields was a source of considerable traffic and profit to New Westminster. The gradual decline of gold mining caused a perceptible depression till the town became very quiet, and, in fact, was little more than a forwarding station for goods going to the interior. The first impetus was given by the subsequent introduction of

THE CANNING INDUSTRY,

Which has now grown into large proportions, and has proved to be a source of considerable wealth, employing a large number of people in connection with it. The saw mills are also great industries employing large amounts of capital. Although a very large portion of the New Westminster district is admirably adapted to farming purposes, the poverty of the early farmers was due to an unfortunately bad system, adopted by shop-keepers, through which the farmer has always been kept poor, and at their mercy. This system has kept the agricultural interest very backward. This district combines in its fullest extent, excellence of soil, with a delightful climate, which gives to it an exceptional value for agricultural purposes. The introduction of farmers of means will change the present unfortunate "hand to mouth" system. Much of the land which has been considered unfit for cultivation will yet prove to be the most fertile and productive

LOCATION OF THE CITY.

The town of New Westminster is well located, and occupies a beautiful position on the right bank of the Fraser river, and presents an inviting and picturesque appearance. On approaching it by steamer, the town rises from the edge of the river, sloping gradually back the entire depth of the townsite, affording admirable facilities for drainage. It is supplied with an abundance of excellent fresh water. The frontage is well lined with wharves, that of the C. P. N. Co. being the most extensive. From these the city derives a fine rental. There are two business streets; Front, near the water, contains a large number of business houses of various denominations, and extends, in the closely built part, over 2000 feet, among which are some very extensive establishments. Columbia street, however, is the principal business street. It is ninety-nine feet, wide, finely laid out, and on each side it is lined with well-filled stores, representing every branch of retail business. This thoroughfare is a very fine one, and the general appearance it presents would do credit to a city of greater pretensions. The residence part of this beautiful city is admirably located, the elevation being such as to combine a beauty of prospect with health. Some of the larger residences are quite handsome edifices, while the many cozy-looking cottages that dot the hills indicate happiness and contentment within. The gardens that surround all the residences are very gay at present, in their summer attire, and show many colored garments of beautiful flowers.

FEATURES OF THE TOWN.

The town is liberally supplied with hotels, there being about a dozen, which are well conducted and remarkably clean. The Columbian, the largest, which was burned down last December, will soon be ready for occupancy. The new structure is very imposing, and will stand a description independent of this. There is a liberal sprinkling of saloons, which, with one or two notable exceptions, are conducted in a very orderly manner. The two canneries of Laidlaw & Co., and Messrs. Ewen & Co., are among the most important industries, when coupled with the saw mills. There is a very nice, though small brewery, which produces an excellent article, and a tannery. The latter is conducted by Mr. James Roussian, and besides tanning all kinds of leather of an excellent quality, he does considerable in furs. He has also a shoe factory.

The city is well governed by a mayor and seven councilmen. It has a good fire department, which has done excellent service on many a trying occasion. The postoffice, telegraph office and custom house occupy a very handsome square stone building, well located, and it looks very substantial. The town has a public reading room, drill hall and skating rink. The Agricultural Hall is a fine frame building, occupying the whole of Market square. It is 26x60 feet, with rooms on both sides. This is used at present as a home for immigrants, and has been kept quite filled during the summer.

CHURCHES AND SCHOOLS.

From the number of churches, the inhabitants must be somewhat religiously inclined, unless, as it is said, "the nearer the church, the farther from grace." There are six churches, which is a goodly number for a place of somewhat over 2,000 people. The Saint Ann's Convent is a large, solid looking building, handsomer than any of the churches. It is occupied by the Sisters of Mercy. Saint Louis College is said to be a fine school for boys, and the Provincial public school is a credit to the town. The Columbia College, for young ladies, is a well conducted private seminary. New Westminster has a jail which—well perhaps the least said about it the better. The hospital is a highly creditable institution, conducted under the auspices of the local government, by a board of directors. Dr. Bentley, a skilled practitioner, is the physician and surgeon. It has an excellent steward and stewardess, and all the other paraphernalia of a well-conducted hospital, but it is sadly in need of repairs, and the drainage is in a deplorably imperfect condition. The Provincial Lunatic Asylum is not near large enough for the many patients that now crowd it. Neither are the grounds extensive enough fo the requirements. Mr. Phillips is the superintendent and Mrs. Ross is the matron. The old Government House, once the daily scene of joyous revelry, when occupied by the lamented Governor Seymour, is a fine old fashioned mansion, originally built by Colonel Moody, and improved by Governor Seymour. This fine old house is now occupied by the engineers of the C.P.R. A short distance takes one to the British Columbia penitentiary, which, with the grounds, occupies 72 acres. The building is far too much crowded, and it is absolutey necessary to build a wing without delay. Mr. McBride, the Warden, works his men most advantageously, through the assistance of Mr. Fitzsimmons. The splendid residence of the

BISHOP OF NEW WESTMINSTER

Stands imposingly on a fine site. It is a handsome, showy residence, and a beautiful little chapel of St. Mary's, stands upon the glebe. It was built in 1861 by the Royal Engineers. Then we reach the Lorne College, a stately looking edifice, though not large enough for the present requirements; a new schoolroom is highly necessary.

The sawmill of DeBeck Bros. is on the riverside, just below the college. It turns out 15,000 feet daily. There is a fine Masonic and Odd Fellows Hall, and a large foundry and machine shop. Louis has a large blacksmith shop, and a fine carriage and wagon factory, and a court house, in which the Supreme, County and Police Courts are held. There are two newspapers, the British Columbian, which is conducted by Mr. D. Robson, and the Mainland Guardian, conducted by Mr. J. K. Suter. Both of these moulders of public opinion have a good share of patronage, and are creditable productions. The Bureau of Emmigration is ably managed by the efficient agent, Mr. W. Ross. The Bank of British Columbia has a flourishing branch, for which Mr. Keith is acting agent in the absence of Mr. Fisher. The British Columbia Express have a most efficient agent at this point and do a large business. Daily stages run to Port Moody and Granville, and two steamers run three times a week to Victoria, also one to Hope once a week. The town has a very healthy business appearance, and is well worthy of a visit, as the whole trip is a continuous changing and blending of beautiful panoramic views of island and picturesque water scenes.

TELEGRAPHIC.

DYNAMITERS AT WORK.

BURLINGTON, Iowa, Aug. 16.—Early yesterday morning W. E. Blake, who has been active as an attorney in the prosecution of the saloon keepers since the prohibitory law went into effect, was startled from his bed by a bright flash of light and a sharp explosion. He thought but little of the matter at the time, but on examination later in the day he found a machine of destruction filled with dynamite, which he now believes was prepared with a view of blowing up his residence, but which failed to explode. Blake says he has no known enemy, and that in the prosecutions he has been courteously treated by the saloon keepers.

CHINESE MATRIMONY.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 16.—A few days ago a Chinese woman was brought down from Portland by Wong Yok, a Chinaman, well known in Portland, and in this city. The old villian tried to force her into a house of ill fame, but she proved intractable, and last night he offered her to several highbinders for $240, with success. Through the efforts of a Chinese friend, she managed to escape, and to-day was married to a friend in the sheriff's office. The woman's second owner and his friend have threatened, in case she refuses to return to her chains, to prosecute her bigamy, alleging that she has a husband in Portland.

THE WHEAT CROPS.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 16.—Forty-nine vessels are under engagement at this port to load wheat all being for the new crop. Seventy-three vessels are disengaged at this port and one at a neighboring port. The engaged and disengaged tonnage quoted has a wheat carrying capacity for 300,000 short tons, against a capacity for 219,000 tons on the corresponding date last year, being an increase of 90,000 tons.

THE SWIMMING MATCH.

The Laurie Bugle.

The contest for this trophy is always of considerable interest, as it is between Provincial teams, and must be won three consecutive times before becoming the property of any company. The Victoria team had won it on two previous occasions, and was hopeful of winning it again, and so being entitled to retain it permanently. New Westminster, however, succeeded in winning the coveted trophy this year. A glance at the score made will show that the prize was lost, not through superior shooting on the part of the winners, but by very inferior marksmanship on the part of the majority of the members of the home team. Enquiries as to the cause, elicit the fact that the men have had no chance of practicing at the target. They were kept for seventeen days in camp, and were taught to order, dress, march, wheel, etc., but were not furnished with a single round of ball cartridge, with which to practice at the butts, a few hundred yards from the "tented field." In these days of long range weapons, the battle is won, not by the man who can "march past" the most orderly, or "stand at ease" the most gracefully, but by those who are the swiftest and most accurate in the use of their weapons. It seems a pity that ammunition was not furnished and an opportunity given to the men to practice with at the targets while performing their annual drill.

New Westminster Improvements.

Last December, Mr. Wm. Rae, who had a fine large and well filled store, containing dry and fancy goods of all kinds, also a large assortment of gents' and boys' clothing and a complete stock of groceries, flour, etc., was burned out. Temporarily he has been successfully carrying on business on the other side of Columbia street while his own premises were being rebuilt. They are now finished and by next Monday his new establishment, which will be known as "The Globe House," will be in full operation. Mrs. Rae takes the supervision of the millinery department, and as she has had long and thorough experience, manages this branch to the satisfaction of all her customers. Shortly Miss Brine, Mrs. Rae's sister, will arrive and give her assistance in the new store. The new premises are next to Mr. Insley's new hotel.

On the "West Shore" Staff.

Mr. Phillip Meagher, the efficient book keeper of THE TIMES, since the starting of this paper, to-day severs his connection with this office, and at once accepts a position with the West Shore. Mr. Meagher is a popular gentleman, an elegant penman, and accountant, and leaves a record here of which he has a right to feel proud. There is not a person around the office who does not bear him the kindliest good will, and wish him success in his new field.

Hanlan Defeated at Last.

By Special Dispatch to THE TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 16.—A dispatch received from Sydney, New South Wales, reports that the sculling match between Hanlan and Beach for the championship of the world and £500 a side, took place to-day on the Parramatta River. Beach won by seven lengths.

Thickness of the Comox Veins.

The series of the coal veins, that is the clear coal, in the Comox series, aggregate a thickness of twenty-eight feet, not a single vein, as the compositors made Mining Engineer Wingate say yesterday, when quoting from Mr. Richardson's geological report. This is submitted in justice to the gentleman who furnished so many interesting facts about Island coal in last evening's issue of this paper.

A Bad Accident.

Last evening Mr. T. Findlay, a carpenter, while working on a building for Mr. Smith, across James Bay, fell from a scaffold and broke two of his ribs. Dr. Dearden was called in to attend to him and under his treatment he is getting along very well. Mr. Finlay lives on Bay street.

The Running Match this Evening.

The race of half a mile at Beacon Hill for $100 a side to take place between Harry Creech and Thomas Watson has been postponed till 7 o'clock this evening instead of 4 o'clock as previously announced. The inside was won by Harry Creech.

Sunday Services.

The Baptist Society will, in future, hold its services in the Temperance Hall, on Pandora street, instead of in the Masonic building.

Marine Disasters.

The statistics of marine disasters for June is as follows: Steamers reported lost, 15; sailing vessels, 58.

Whaling Fleet.

MAINLAND INDUSTRIES.

Description of Two Extensive Saw-Mills.

THE GROUNDS THEY OCCUPY.

The Machinery Used—Number of Men Employed, and Amount of Lumber Produced.

MINOR DETAILS.

The Royal City planing mills are located at the extreme lower end of the town of New Westminster, and cover about five acres. They were started in 1877, by Messrs. Hendry, McNair & Co., and, after being run successfully for three years, a limited company was formed in the name first mentioned. Mr. John Hendry has continued since, as its manager. When started, it had a capacity of 8,000 feet per day, which has been gradually increased, from time to time, as new machinery has been procured and added, till now they cut somewhere about 35,000 feet. Connected with the mill there, is a large sash and door factory, which turns out an immense amount of doors and windows. The main building is two stories high and is 35 feet wide by 200 feet long. The lower part is occupied principally for sawing purposes. In this department there are two 62-inch circular saws, one edger, and two trimmers. The lumber handled is mostly cedar, fir, spruce and pine. The fir is used

PRINCIPALLY FOR BUILDING PURPOSES,

The cedar for doors, finishings and mouldings, and the pine for sash purposes. On the same floor there are two planers, one having a capacity of twenty thousand feet, while the other has a capacity of ten thousand feet. There is also a gang saw, with a capacity of ten thousand feet per day. There are two moulding machines, each capable of turning out ten thousand feet per day. On the side of the main building there are two buildings, 60x60 feet, used for the manufacture of shingles, and for lumber, or other boxes. Some twenty-five thousand shingles are made daily, and the boxes, as ordered. The machinery is very complete, consisting of two small saws, a planer and a patent stenciling machine, run by steam power.

The engines that drive all the machinery in the factory and mill are 14x20, and 16x20 cylinder. Mr. Wm. Johnson is foreman of the saw mill.

ON THE SECOND FLOOR.

The whole of the building up stairs is used for the manufacture of doors and windows, also for all kinds of turning work, of which a large amount is done, as will be seen, when it is stated that 100 doors are made and finished every day. Also fifty windows, besides several sets of table legs and bannisters. There are some splendid blinds manufactured at this factory, both inside and also for the outside. Some twenty sets are made per day. The machinery used is all of the latest and most approved kind, and the following is a list of what is needed in this department: one twenty-inch planer, three rip and cross-cut saws, one tenanting machine, one mentiser, one sticking machine, one shaper, one band saw, a jig-saw for cutting inside scroll work, one relishing machine, and two metering machines. T. W. Kerr is foreman up stairs.

THE GLAZING AND PAINT SHOP.

This is a separate building, some 30x60 feet in size, and two stories high. The lower story is kept as a store-room for doors, windows and glass, and up stairs for glazing. A. W. Scoullar is foreman in this useful branch. Besides, the Company has two large dry houses, the combined size being 16x105 feet, for kiln drying lumber. They dry some 40,000 feet every week. There is also a lath mill, which produces 8000 laths per day. The company have another large mill at Nanaimo, which turns out 20,000 feet per day, and two logging camps. Most of the lumber used at the Royal Planing Mills is obtained at Mud Bay, where they they have their own logging camps, and use three steamers in towing logs. The wages boys and men get at the mills ranges from $3 to $4 per day in the sash and door factory, and from $35 to $100 per month, and board, in the mill. The company employ 125 men, and that must prove of a great benefit to the town of New Westminster.

THE DOMINION SAW MILLS.

This very large and prosperous establishment adjoins the Royal City Planing Mills, and is, therefore, situated at a splendid point for carrying on their immense business. The mill was first established in 1878, by the Messrs. Webster Bros., who continued to run it till 1883, when a limited company was formed. J. B. Henderson is the manager and T. W. Gray is the superintendent and secretary. Mr. John Webster, one of the original starters of the mill, is still one of the directors. The lumber yards and buildings cover a very large area of ground. The main building, used for sawing lumber, is 40x200 feet, and is two stories high. The lower floor is occupied by the engines, which are large and powerful, being some 200 horse power, and having five large boilers to supply them with steam. There is one large planer which is capable of planing 12,000 feet per day. They make 12,000 lathes and 20,000 shingles every 11½ hours. The shingle mill stands on the side of the main building and is 25x100 feet.

ON THE SECOND FLOOR,

Where the sawing is principally done, there are a 60-inch and a 62-inch saw, one 40-inch edge saw, two 36-inch cut-off saws, with a capacity of 40,000 feet per day, and a planer which turns out 8,000 feet per day. This company have a well appointed blacksmith shop for repairing their tools and machinery. In another large building, adjoining, they make doors, windows and furniture. The lower story is 50x140, while the upper is 32x140. The machinery for these departments is driven by a 25-horse power engine. Attached to the end of the building is a room used exclusively for grinding and filing, supplied with emory stones for knives and saws. In the window and door factory, for which the whole of the first floor is used, it is at present a most pleasing scene of industry to behold

THE MACHINERY ALL IN MOTION,

Preparing the work for the various branches. At the entrance, the first is an endless surface plainer, having a capacity of 20,000 feet, one moulding machine, one railway cut-off saw, four rip-saw machines, one boring machine, one shaping machine, one surface planer, one band-saw machine, one jig-saw, for scroll work, one tenanting machine, one mortising machine with boring attachment, one small moulding machine, one panel raising machine, one turning lathe, one fine patent clamp machine, and one steam glue heater. This branch is under the management of William Gerrie. During the present year there was one log of Douglas fir, cut at the Dominion saw mill, which was 73 inches in diameter and 26 feet long, which equals 7,736 feet of board measure. Its estimated weight was 17 tons.

The company has taken every precaution against fire, as over the boiler department it has a metal roof. They also have

FOUR IMMENSE WATER TANKS,

Capable of holding 8,000 gallons of water. These supply the boilers, and have sufficient hose attachments.

The furniture manufactory is under the management and direction of a most skilfull mechanic, Wm. Irving. Every class of bedroom and kitchen furniture is made, some of which is quite unique in style, and it is all made from native woods. The demand for the furniture manufactured by this company is coming largely into use. The company has a million and a half of cut lumber on hand, besides two and a half millions in logs. There are about 120 men employed by the company. New Westminster has reason to be proud of her saw mills.

GEO. STEPHEN'S COSTLY PIANO.

Polished Satinwood and Elaborate Inlaid Work—The Legs.

One year ago Mr. W. T. Thomas, a Canadian architect, who planned the handsome house of George Stephen, president of the Canadian Pacific Railway at Montreal, also designed the furniture, including a pianoforte, all to be in Queen Anne style. The order for the piano was given, after much deliberation, to Decker Brothers, of this city, and plans and specifications were sent to them. The design of the architect was followed throughout, and the instrument was finished a few days ago. It will be on exhibition at Decker Brothers' warerooms to-morrow but a Tribune reporter was favored yesterday with a view of it at the factory, in West Thirty-fifth street, and was permitted to run his fingers over the keys. In appearance the pianoforte would ornament any apartment. It is of the small grand pattern and is built of the satinwood of South America, finished in different styles to produce contrasting effects. The case proper is made of nine pieces of satinwood veneering glued together to form one continuous body which reaches from corner to corner. This is laid off in panels which are inlaid with rare and costly woods of South America, and bright metal. One panel contains a lyre, the frame of which is of tulipwood and the string of metal; the vine that leads away from it on either side has its stem of amaranth, its leaves of cocobola and its leaf skeletons of glittering metal, while the whole has a snakewood border. A sprig of oak has its acorn cups of amaranth and its bulbs of metal, producing the effect of nature. The name "Decker Brothers, New York," is of mental inlaid in a field of amaranth which has a border of ebony. The carving of the shoulders and scrolls is elaborate, and the polish of the wood rivals the finest satin, and is so brilliant as almost to produce an optical illusion. The legs of the instrument are like the arched doorways of a palace. Each consists of two columns of satinwood, exquisitely carved and inlaid, which come together at the top to form the arch. A gilded castor rolls under each column. The screws and hinges of the instrument also are gilded. Every part of the workmanship was done under the immediate supervision of the elder Mr. Decker, and with the exception of the iron casting in the frame every piece of the instrument was made in his factory. The color of the case is the natural color of the wood, and the value of the instrument is $4,000.

Edwin Hartley Wins the Match.

At the swimming match at the Gorge this afternoon there were four starters, viz: Edwin and Samuel Hartley, Wm. Creech and E. W. Spencer. The judges were F. S. Brown, W. E. Osterhout and T. C. McKennely. The race was for three prizes, the first being $30, second $20, and the third $10. The distance was 150 yards. The contestants started from a raft anchored in the arm of the Gorge, and swam to the wharf near the hotel. They moved off evenly, and thus advanced for about twenty yards, when Edwin Hartley led off, with William Creech second, and Samuel Hartley third. E. W. Spencer remaining fourth. It was a hard race for second place between Hartley and Creech. These positions were substantially held when the contestants got in, Hartley reached the gaol about two yards ahead of Mr. Creech. A respectable crowd was in attendance, but not as many as was expected. A lively interest was displayed. Hartley is the winner of several matches in England.

New Westminster Tonsorial Palace.

The splendid hair dressing saloon, barber shop and bath room just finished for Mr. George Meade, on Columbia street, next to Mr. Rae, is a model in its way. The whole appointments are to be first-class and of the latest and most approved style. George is a superior artist and keeps only first class operators in his employ. His new bath rooms are large and elegant, and are nicely arranged.

Minneapolis, in spite of dull times, is growing fast and a vast amount of money is being expended in the erection of buildings for private and business uses. It is said that the season's operations in this city will nearly equal those of last year, when buildings to the value of $10,000,000 were erected.

The wheat yield of the United States is estimated at about 550,000 bushels, the largest in the history of the country. The "hum" will soon be with us.

THAT MARRIAGE.

Miss Belinger Calls and Makes a Statement.

HER MOTHER ALSO TALKS.

They Give Some Graphic Details of a Ten Days' Courtship and Marriage.

THEIR PORTRAIT OF GODIER.

On Thursday evening THE TIMES contained the intensely readable and very startling announcement that one Albert Godier had been suddenly married to a Miss Josephine Belinger, recently arrived in this city with her family, and that her father had shown such beligerent tendencies immediately thereafter, that Godier had girt himself round about, out of that locality, realizing that his health was liable to become impaired if he lingered. Many particulars were given, all of which, except perhaps some unimportant details, were correct. No attempt was made at straining the facts. The romance was so great, so utterly different and beyond those even of rare occurrence, that the bare recital of the truth was enough to arouse and retain the attention. It portrayed the particulars of a marriage, with kindred incidents in real life, surpassing strange, and

RARELY EQUALLED IN ANY CITY,

However great. In reciting the cold facts mention was made that the groom was the boots and porter of the Driard. When the account of the wedding, and after realizations of the bride and her family, were published, the newly married man proceeded to work himself into a rage, but on after consideration, he resolved to come down and "treat" the entire office. Having thus called to put his intention into execution, his face grew radiant with satisfaction, he took his departure in the most self-satisfied and pleased manner. Going to bed he got up mad, and went about in the broad sunlight, nurturing what his bedezined mind had construed to be a genuine grievance. He talked tragically of having changed his mind, and intimated that he must now sue for damages. He was told that it was a good move, if he could make it stick. At the same time it was tersely remarked that he had better make no bigger mule of himself

THAN HE HAD MADE.

Waxing more wroth he proceeded to narrate his intentions to various persons on the streets. Realizing the need of funds and prominence, it struck him that he could gain notoriety by short oratorical efforts delivered at random. In the latter he was not mistaken. His notoriety has grown as has the knowledge of the strange marrage in which he and the young woman, mentioned herewith, performed important parts. It was announced that Mrs. Godier, nee Miss Belinger, would have nothing to do with him, and that she had totally renounced him immediately after the ceremony. Godier had furthermore carried his grievances to a contemporary paper, and made some statements to which exception was taken. This morning Miss Belinger, accompanied by her mother, an elderly lady of about 45 years, called at THE TIMES office to make a thorough statement. They were accorded a hearing.

WHO IS MISS BELINGER?

Miss Belinger is a young woman of 21. She is of good physique, of reasonably fair complexion, dark hair, and large lustrous eyes. Her lips are expressive, and her countenance is pleasing. It is plain that she is not without some attainments. Her face displays intelligence, and more than ordinary expression. She is a genuine brunette, fully up to the medium size, and her demeanor, while devoid of stiffness, is marked by just a touch of dignity. She arrived here only three weeks ago from Chicago, where she was saleswomen, as she states, for several years. Her family consists of father, mother, and six children, two of whom are young ladies. They live on View street, and Miss Belinger says she knew young Godier but ten days. Explaining the details which led to the hurried marriage

HER MOTHER PATHETICALLY SAID:

"You see, we were strangers in the city. We knew nobody and were lonesome. Godier was brought to our house and introduced by a French Canadian acquaintance. We supposed he was what he represented himself to be—some sort of a business man, and not a bootblack and porter at a hotel. We thought he was a gentleman, and not a charlatan, who dealt and bartered in human affections. He represented that he was by profession a bookkeeper; that his father was a wealthy London merchant, and that at present he was some kind of a superintendent in the city. He met my daughter thus, and took her to the opera once. Once also he took her to the ice cream parlors, my other daughter being along with her escort. Godier, in all, was at our house, but three times, and I never thought of such a thing as a marriage, when on Monday evening last, Josie having been out riding with the hateful Englishman about an hour, returned, and I met her at the door. As I swung it open for her, she shrieked out

'I'M MARRIED,' AND IMMEDIATELY

commenced crying. I said, "What, you married?" and she said, "Yes, and I don't never, never want to see him, or have anything to do with him again. I never will. Oh, I'm so miserable." "It was a great surprise to all of us, I assure you." Here the feelings of Mrs. Belinger would allow her proceed no further. The young lady, the former, at length having regained her composure, said that Godier after becoming acquainted with her had paid her marked attention. On the fateful evening he had said, after they had driven for a half hour or thereabout, "How would you like to get married?" and I said,

"OH, GOOD ENOUGH,"

"Just off hand like. You know how anyone is likely to talk. Still I didn't realize it. I thought it was just in fun. I didn't know even, that Godier had a license. Marriage had never been suggested before, and under a sort of a halucination, allowed myself to get out of the carriage where he stopped. I am told now it was at the Methodist clergyman's and in a brief moment it was all over. After this he took me immediately home, and I did not see him for three days. He agreed to leave me and go to Australia. Talk about me marrying a boot black—nice story that to get back to Chicago. He told me he was worth several thousand dollars, and here I find him nothing but a porter in a hotel. Oh, I'll never live with him.

I'LL LIVE A GRASS WIDOW

All my life, before I have anything to do with him." She proceeded to recount the many times when he had, as she alleged, used deceit when telling of his possessions, and in various other ways. In short, the young lady was constrained to say that she had found

"That love with gall and honey doth abound."

She says she and her family propose to live here, that she will acquit herself in such a manner that all shall revere and respect her, but the marriage, now so strange to her, shall not be binding. If she cannot get a divorce here, she will go where she can get one, for she is determined that a fellow who would take advantage of her in the manner narrated is not a suitable man for a husband. She had no ambition, she states, to marry a man of wealth, but she did not wish to unwittingly be united for life to a worthless scullion.

This is the simple story of an event occurring in the staid and slow-going capital of British Columbia, which puts to naught the romances of Mrs. Holmes, Augusta J. Evans or May Agnes Fleming. There is the material in it for the most touching appeals of the moralist, and for the imagery of the poet, as well as for the carping critic and cynic. No doubt there is much to learn from it, tending as it does, to show that existence is a hard reality; that as Mr. Talmage says, "Life is neither a farce, nor a comedy," and that as each goes through the world he should have his eyes open to "pretenders" and cheats; those who have no sense of justice, no notion of acting with motives of ordinary honesty, and who with unparalleled effrontery make their way through the world.

LIFE'S OBJECTS.

[Tennyson.]

Love thou thy land, with love far brought
From out the storied Past, and used
Within the Present, but transfused
Through future time by power of thought.

* * * * * * *

Watch what main currents draw the years,
Cut prejudice against the grain,
But gentle words are always gain;
Regard the weakness of thy peers;

Nor toil for title, place or touch
Of pension, neither count on praise—
It grows to guerdon after-days—
Nor deal in watchwords overmuch.

JOE CUSHING'S RAILROAD.

His Elegantly Engraved Annual Pass for General Distribution.

[St. Louis Globe-Democrat.]

"Joe Cushing," said a railroad man to a reporter the other day, "used to own a mill on a certain railway up in New Hampshire, and it was an almighty big mill, too. Well, the railroad got to squeezing Joe pretty hard. They told him he'd got to ship over their line or shut up his mill, and they proposed to charge him any rate they wanted to. At last Joe couldn't stand it any longer. There was another railroad six miles away, and one day he went to see the general manager of the other line, and offered to build a road 'cross lots' from his mill if he was guaranteed certain reasonable charges for all time to come. His offer was accepted, and inside of twenty-four hours Joe had 500 men at work shoveling down hills, filling up valleys, bridging streams and laying rails and ties. The officials of the road that had been putting the blocks to him went to see him, and offered to carry his stuff for the cost of transportation if he would abandon his project, but Joe promptly refused them. In a few months he had his road completed, and he has been using it ever since.

"Now, the fun of the thing is that as soon as everything was in working order Joe went to Boston and had a lot of printing done, and before many days every railroad official in America received an elegantly engraved annual pass, inclosed in a neatly printed circular. The front of the pass read as follows:

"'1881. JOE CUSHING'S ROAD. 1881. Pass Mr.——— until Dec. 31, 1881, unless otherwise ordered.

"'No.—. JOE CUSHING, President.

"On the back was printed this unique sentence: 'This pass is not transferable. The person accepting and using it thereby assumes the right to travel and transport baggage over this road whenever he pleases, and at the risk of Joe Cushing, who will be financially responsible for all damage to person or property incurred while so traveling.'

"The circular was headed by a map of the road showing the location of the mill and the length of the line. It said in substance: 'My road is only six miles long, but it is perfectly solvent, pays all its interest charges and taxes, and it is a first-class property in every respect. I herewith send you an annual pass, and invite you to use my line at any and all times at my own risk. If you should see fit to extend to me in return the courtesy of an annual pass over your road I shall greatly appreciate it.'

"Well, sir, the man's cheek was so enormous that the officials of nearly every road in America laugh over the thing and send him a pass, and I hear of him every now and then in different places all over the country using his annual."

Piano-Playing in Berlin.

[Foreign Letter.]

The petition to prohibit piano-playing daily in this city from 11 a. m. to 2 p. m. and from 9 p. m. until 11 p. m. is considered absurd, says a Berlin letter. Those interested in its success are notified to call at the editorial-rooms of The Echo, Dessauer strasse, daily from 9 to 5, and sign their names to the petition. As almost all Berlin lives in apartment-houses, there are other grievances of more importance, such as the squalling baby, the sharp-tongued house-wife, and the people overhead who will walk about at the wrong time. But, considering the petition seriously, should it win, what would become of the numerous music schools and teachers here, their best morning hours cut off, regardless of the thousands of music students scattered through the city? This is one of the greatest centers in the world for music study, and no great restrictions are liable to be put on the musicians. It is certainly enough that the police have restricted all sorts of disturbances from 11 p. m. until 7 a. m.

At Weimar no one is allowed to play in a room with an open window. Such a request here would have been more reasonable, for every man's house should be his castle. Berlin probably has more street disturbances than any other city on the globe, and which are infinitely more distracting to quiet study than any sort of piano-playing. They are always to be heard—the vegetable man crying his wares; the junk man after "old clothes, old iron," etc., and the organ-grinder with his infernal machine.

Some Fat Legal Fees.

[New York Cor. Troy Times.]

Charles O'Conor received $75,000 for his services in the Jumel case, which were very reasonable, since he secured to clients an estate worth $1,000,000. Evarts received $35,000 for defending Beecher. Beach, who represented Tilton, did not receive more than $5,000, and to raise this sum Theodore had to mortgage his house and exhaust all other resources. Ten years have elapsed since this famous action took place, and probably the world has never seen a more exciting scandal since the attempt of George IV to divorce the queen. Scott Lord, who conducted Cornelius J. Vanderbilt's contest of his father's will received $50,000, and William H. Vanderbilt probably paid even more to his legal combatants.

In the James R. Taylor will fight the entire estate, amounting to a quarter million, was devoured by the lawyers during a long litigation, which was only discontinued when the funds were exhausted. Railway litigation pays liberal fees, and it is said that David D. Field draws $10,000 a year as counsel for the L roads. If any practitioner can get a berth of this kind he is sure of a fortune. In the Parish will case the fees were $50,000. The richest case, however, on record in this country, was the protracted quarrel between two coal companies. They had made an agreement of a very clear and explicit character, and yet each interpreted it differently from the other. Notwithstanding the carefulness with which it was drawn there was clear room for such a misunderstanding, and each appealed to the law.

Cells in an Apartment House.

[Clara Belle's Letter.]

Unless you have seen them you can have no idea of the smallness of the suites of rooms which New York families of considerable pretension to style are willing to habitate. Not a spare foot of space is wasted. The parlors are bedrooms in size, and the bedrooms are mere closets. I have made the transatlantic passage, and I vow that the stateroom of a steamship is commodious compared with some of the boxes in which human beings with luxurious ideas are put to sleep in this city. No room at a summer hotel can possibly seem cramped after a winter of such experience.

Forgot the Match.

A Philadelphia woman drank a pint of coal oil with suicidal intent, but, as she forgot to swallow a lighted match, she still lives.

Arkansaw Traveler: A dispatch says that two of London's distinguished authors are writing a joint book. A work on anatomy, doubtless.
